

HALLOWEEN PLANS

Name:

Date:

During a conversation, it is important to make sure our friends are interested, listening, and following along with what we are saying. It is also important to engage in eye contact and turn-taking. Sometimes when we tell a story, our friends may get lost or become confused with the details. We must make sure we watch their facial expression and listen to their comments to make sure they are engaged and listening.

Sarah is telling Jane about her Halloween plans. Jane seems confused. How can we tell?

How does this conversation make Jane feel?

What could Sarah have said/done to make sure Jane was following along?

When Sarah was done talking about her Halloween plans, she asked if Jane wanted to come. What else should Sarah have asked Jane?
